DRUIDS GLEN

Originally built around the historic Woodstock House, dating back to the 16th century, Druids Glen has become one of Ireland's most celebrated golf destinations. Designed by Pat Ruddy and Tom Craddock, the championship course earned the title of European Golf Resort of the Year in 2005 and is affectionately known as the "Augusta of Europe."

Following an extensive restoration and upgrade, the 7,222-yard, par-72 course has been rebuilt to USGA standards, further enhancing its reputation for world-class golf.

Druids Glen has proudly hosted four Irish Opens, welcoming some of the game's greatest players, with champions including Colin Montgomerie and Sergio Garcia. Today, it continues to offer an unforgettable golfing experience in the heart of County Wicklow.
